NEW MODEL MINE NEAR BROWNSVILLE MOST COMPLETE IN THE ENTIRE VALLEY

Refuse of Coke Ovens to Be Used in Carrying On the Operations

IS OWNED BY INDIVIDUAL

Seven Hundred Acre Tract of Fine Coal Lands Held By Captain Harry Brown, a Former Brownsville Man

A new model mine which is said to be the most complete in the valley has recently been opened up on what is known as the old Sam Brown farm near Brownsville, and headings are now being run in preparation for active mining operations to begin. The latest kind of machinery has been installed. James Black, former superintendent of the Dilworth mine at Ric-s Landing, will be the superintendent, and the private owner is Capt. Harry Brown of Pittsburg, a former Brownsville man.

Capt. Brown has about 700 acres of mining torritory, it is said, and an exceptionally good product is promised. The shaft was but recently sunk and the power thus built and machinery installed.

The machinery to be used is of the latest model, and something entirely different from that in any other mine along the valley. The boilers are of automatic feed and have an automatic pump attached Capt. Brown is having a number of coke ovens constructed in the immediate vicinity of the mine, and for fuel in his boilers will use a large quantity of the refuse from them. This will be entirely new innovation for a mine and will be a great saving.

About two and a half miles back in the country from the new mine of Capt Brown the Frick company will probably make new openings. It is said that the Frick Coal and Coke company dickered for the Brown holdings but the owner refused to sell, preferring to operate a mine himself.

It is said that a mine is to be opened also directly across the river by a "dark-horse." presumably a representative of the Jones and Laughlin company.

RUMORED NEW PLANT IS TO BE ERECTED

A man who is supposed to represent the Jones and Laughlin Steel company has completed arrangements for purchasing the tract of bottom land in the vicinity of old Lock No 5 near Brownsville in Washington county. The land is known as the Sol Watkins property and the consideration was $37,200. Ten thousand dollars was paid for the property a few years ago. Nothing has been made public as to what the land is to be utilized for, and there is some talk of a plant to be erected.

Tener Gets Majority

The result of the straw vote for Governor of Pennsylvania which was taken by the clerical force of the Pittsburg Steel at the Monessen office yesterday afternoon resulted in giving John K. Tener, the Republican nominee 33 votes, William H. Berry, the Keystone nominee 4 and Webster Grim the Democratic nominee 0.

RAILROADS LOOKING AFTER NEW FIELDS

Railroads are centering their interests on the new Virginia coal fields to be opened shortly. Yesterday a party of P. and L. E. officials, it is stated, made a trip over a part of the Monongahela railroad leading south from Brownsville, to look over the territory and to get an idea of the field. According to rumor this railroad is planning making extensive improvements to gain access to the new field, as well as the Pennsylvania railroad and the Baltimore and Ohio. An agreement will probably be effected between these three companies, giving each an equal share in the handling of the produce, with Brownsville, as heretofore stated, as the general freight distribution point.

OFFICERS LOOKING FOR ALLEGED HORSE THIEVES

Supposed Pittsburgers Fugitives From Law

CHARGED WITH FORGERY

Claimed Young Men Signed Wrong Names to Important Papers

Nearly every police officer and constable in Washington and Greene counties is searching for two young men supposed to hail from Pittsburg, who are charged with being forgers ard horse thieves. Chief of Police William J. Dulaney, of Washington with a small posse in automobiles traveled over the eastern section of the country during the past two days on the trail of two men who are driving a horse and buggy belonging to A. R. Renshaw, a Washington liveryman.

The fugitives threw the officers off their trail. The two appeared in Washington about two weeks ago and immediately began to make friends. Last Saturday one of them visited many stores and, making small purchases, gave checks rawn on the Washington Trust company in payment. Sunday, the two obtained the rig from Renshaw, saying they wished to attend a funeral at West Middletown. They left a check in payment and vanished. On Monday morning when the banks opened the checks were found to be worthless. No trace of the men was found until yesterday, when word came from Marianna that they had been seen there.

Mr. and Mrs. Engler will leave shortly for Chicago, where they will remain a short while after which they will go to Iowa and North Dakota, before returning home.

Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Whitlatch and daughter Dorothy went to Pittsburg today to visit relatives.

HEN FRUIT NOT COSTLY WITHOUT GOOD REASON

Scrambled Eggs Fashionable After Horses Shy At Car

The Humpty Dumpty of nursery rhyme fame has nothing on a crate of eggs, which up to yesterday afternoon, when they suddenly passed to the great beyond, belonged to the Valley Crystal Ice and Storage company The eggs were in a delivery wagon backed up in front of Joe Caruso's store, on McKean avenue. The horses were rather fractious and when a street car came along gave a sudden start. The crate of eggs went down, down, and with a splash of yellow, miry, sticky, squirmy stuff, the hen fruit flormed into the gutter. Owing to the high cost of eggs the damage is considerable. No insurance was carried.

ST. ELMO COMING ON NEXT TUESDAY

Contrasting boldly with the tense realism which is characterizing both the literature and the drama of the present day, comes the announcement that "St. Elmo," by far the most fascinating novel of southern life ever offered to the public, has been worked over into dramatic form and is to be seen at the Coyle Theatre next Tuesday evening. Since its first appearance many years ago, its author, Augusta J. Evans, has enjoyed a unqiue fame, especially here in the south which afforded her the inspiration for her most notable work. Written in the dignified style that characterizes the mental attitude of the day, and with the extraordinary insight into the habits and thoughts of men, the book sets forth in interest compelling fashion a romantic narrative that has never ceased to appeal. The book has run through edition upon edition and even today, the rising generation seizes upon it with the same vivid interest as did their progenitors, while older folk turn to it to reawaken the old time sentiments which the literature of the present day fails to satisfy.

Skating Rink Open

The skating rink will now be open on Monday, Wednesday and Saturday evenings and Saturday afternoons. A basket ball team is being formed to play teams.

Miss Fannie Arrison is a Pittsburg visitor today.

VACANT LOTS REPRESENT IDLE CAPITAL OF $400,000

Three Thousand More Persons Needed to Fill Charleroi, According to Figures Submitted by J. K. Johnston

AVERAGE OF 5.8 PERSONS TO THE LOT

There are 534 unoccupied lots in Charleroi, representing an idle capital of $400,000, according to Jesse K. Johnston, superintendent of the Charleroi Coal company. A report in full as he had been able to secure data, was made on this interesting subject at a smoker of the Charleroi Business Men's Association held on last Thursday evening

Mr. Johnston in his investigations found that on McKean avenue there are 91 vacant lots; on Fallowfield 41; on Washington 26; on Lincoln, 23 and on Fifth street from the railroad to Lincoln avenue seven, making a total in what might be termed the business or down town section of the town, of 188 unoccupied lots. From Lincoln avenue to the western end of the borough line in the hill district there are 346 lots unoccupied by buildings.

By the old Charleroi Land company allotment and subsequent additions there are 2,250 lots. By a little calulation it is thus shown that there are 1,716 lots occupied in Charleroi. Estimating the population at 10,000 persons, there is an average of 5.8 persons per lot. Leaving room for factories and new industries which may come, there should be 3,000 more persons here to occupy the vacant lots, that is to fill up the town entirely.

Miss Edna Grove recited James Whitcomb Riley's "Seein' Things at Night." A business session was held, at which time plans were formulated for carrying on the organized class work more efficiently. J. K. Brumbaugh is the teacher of the class.

Both the second and third quarters of the last fiscal year were heavier than during this year's first qurter, the receipts being $4,412.66 and $4,361,92 respectively.

The Straw Vote

"The circulation-craving afternoon papers of Pittsburg have engaged ardently in the straw vote business," says the Connellsville Courier. "Their agents are canvassing theatres and other public places. Their reports indicate that Tener heads the poll and Berry comes second. Grim is put at the foot of the list. This at best only indicates the sentiment in classes above the common people. The latter are not given to gilded palaces of amusement. They will be found voting for either Tener or Grim.

"Berry is the candidate of the eminently respectable element with just enough position to aspire to office and become insurgent when disappointed. In the name of Reform, they would sacrifice the Prosperity of the Nation. They would not do this wilfully, maliciously and understandingly but they would do it unintentionally, ignorantly and misunderstandingly. Their intentions are excellent but their practical knowledge of the situation is defective.

"As proof of this statement we need only point out that the particular object of their antipathy is what they denuminate the Penrose Machine. Against it they have the grievance that it hasn't seen fit to recognize their particular and peculiar virtues. They overlook the fact that the chief test of the Republican organization's favor is the favor with which the individual is received by the people.

"As an indication of popular sentiment the straw vote is not always reliable. It shows the trend of sentiment among a particular class only. Among that class it appears that Tener holds his own in spite of recent attempts to connect his name with disreputable business transactions. He stands better than that with the Common People.

"The straw vote man is useful in a way, but he does not scrape the bottom of the situation. He skims the top and the top is usually very frothy. His reports thus far indicate that Tener will head the poll for Governor, and that if Grim is removed from the contest Tener's majority will be all the more overwhelming."

Where Help is Needed

The practical heart to heart talks at the lunch and smoker of the Charleroi Business Men's Association has resulted in a definite showing just how Charleroi stands and what she need to continue the progress that has made the wonderful showing up to the present time With over five hundred vacant lots in the town it will require approximately three thousand people yet it completly occupy the present limits of the borough bundaries. This is not all, however. There must be something to employ these people, as the population has now greatly outstripped the present labor market of the town.

Like Pittsburg, something more is needed in Charleroi besides the big basic industries of glass and coal. Something is necessary to fill in—smaller industries which employ a few people and have a chance to develop and expand. Just now conditions are not favorble to this form of industry. Labor, because of the big concerns here and in the near vicinity, is not available for the starting and development of small enterprises. The supply is not abundent enough nor sufficiently efficient to become specialists in the more skilful manufacturing arts. Enough people do not own their own homes to enter these trades which cannot pay high enough wages for working people to come here and locate from other sections. Consequently these industries seek the agricultural towns of the middle west or the eastern States, where population is congested.

What is necessary now is for all the business interests of the town to encourage what small concerns are already in existence here, and give them a chance to branch out and expand. It is probable that those already here make a greater aggregate than most people imagine, but they are rarely considered as a benefit in a public way. Many of them are in the struggling period, and some help and encouragement at the proper time would do much toward tiding them over. Every one that fails throws some competititive labor back on the market to seek places in the big concerns again, or possiby leave town to enter new fields. We do not want to drive people out of town: we should seek to keep them here. It is these small concerns that are needed now, and they should command the attention of those interested in the development and progress of the town.

An Importer's Game

While personal animus against the State Republican organization and political disappointment are leading factors in the Philadelphia North American's scandalous attacks on Congressman John K. Tener, Republican candidate for Governor, there are other sordid and sinister motives. The North American is the personal organ of John Wanamaker, one of the largest importers in the United States, who is exceedingly interrested in lower tariff schedules for the benefit of his retail dry goods trade. The Wanamaker interests have big department stores in New York and Philadelphia, and are heavy importers of foreign goods. They maintain factories in Europe where labor is cheap, and a Congress that will abolish or cut down the protective tariff will materially add to the Wanamaker profits.

This is the obvious reason why the Keystone campaign, which ostensibly is waged against the so-called Republican State Machine, is trying to elect all the Democratic Congressmen it can in Pennsylvania. The Keystone party has indorsed practically every Democratic Congressman where there promises to be a close fight, as well as members of the Legislature who elect a United States Senator at the next session. This is why the North American inaugurated its campaign to slander, to satisfy old political grudges and to promote the Wanamaker importing interests. Foreign made goods can be sold cheaper in this country than those made by American workmen and with the tariff tax lowered the Wanamaker interests will be doubly served, even though it does result in closing down many of the textile mills and factories in this country.

Very Brief.

A record of brevity in a holiday correspondence was established by a Frenchman in the eighteenth century. Voltaire and Piton, the epigrammatist, exchanged challenges to write the shortest possible letter. So, when Voltaire was starting on a journey, he wrote to Piton, "Eo rus," which is the complete Latin for "I am going to the country." Piton's answer was just "I"—complete Latin for "Go!"

In business correspondence the record is divided between Victor Hugo, who, anxious to know how his "Les Miserables" was going, wrote to the publisher, "?" and the publisher, who triumphantly replied, "!"

A Servile House of Lords.

When King Henry VIII.'s name was spoken in his presence in the house of lords every peer prostrated himself with Asiatic servility. An entry in the records of the house gives the substance of a speech delivered by the chancellor on Jan. 16, 1541, in which the king's goodness and wisdom are extolled, and it tells us that whenever his majesty was mentioned, "which happened often," all the lords prostrated themselves, bowing to the ground as one man.

The Important Personage.

"Are you the owner of this place?" asked the book agent.

"I am," replied Farmer Corntassel. "Anything I can do for you?"

"No. The chances are that you are too hard worked to have time to read anything and that you haven't any spare change anyhow. Let me talk to the hired man." Washington Star.

Poor Simile.

"[illegible] only one so timid as Hodgkins is," remarked Wigger. "Why, he's like a mouse in his own house."

"Nonsense!" exclaimed Wagger. "His wife isn't the least bit afraid of him."

And War Continued.

Miss Goodley—Bess says she's ready to make up if you are. Miss Cutting—Tell her I'd be ready to make up, too, if I had a complexion as muddy as hers.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Patience.

Her Mother—You must be patient with him. The Bride—Oh, I am. I know it will take time for him to see that he can't have his own way.

AMONG THE THEATRES

The Palace—Charleroi

"A Salutary Lesson," was the title of an impressive object lesson at the Palace Theatre this week. A Biograph photoplay shows how lack of attention to a little child—God's greatest gift to the home—nearly had a fatal culmination. The scene is a pleasant home in a seaside cottage, but the mother of the little girl is so addicted to reading cheap novels, that when the child begs to be taken for a stroll on the beach she is impatiently repulsed. Later the father takes the little one to the beach, but there meets a flirtatious young lady to whom he devotes his attention and neglects the child. In the meantime the mother at home entertains the minister, who calls during the husband's absence. Left to herself the little one wanders to a rock out in the bay on which she falls asleep. The rising tide engulfs her, and as she is about to be drowned she is rescued by a life guard. The conscience stricken parents are brought to a realization of their indifference, and the scene ends happily.

The Coyle—Charleroi

Unusual interest is being manifested everywhere in the production of "St. Elmo," Neil Twomey's dramatization of Augusta J. Evans' novel of that name which will be seen at the Coyle Theatre, Charleroi, Tuesday evening, October 25. The production is on an elaborate scale and the production company is made up of metropolitan players, in the selection of whom every care was exercised. No novel of southern life or indeed no novel of any classification has given the reader a more virile or interesting character than that of St. Elmo Murray, who wars against himself and the world and against his own nobler and better nature until the softening influence if a truly noble girl provides him with the incentive to conquer his evil genius. Mr. Twomey is a dramatic author of experience and every expedient of a master of stagecraft has been employed to reproduce with absolute fidelity to the original the charming southern atmosphere of this famous novel. The book numbers its admirers by the hundred thousands and the play is rapidly gaining the same meed of favor.

The Alvin—Pittsburg.

A remarkably lively interest is being manifested in the engagement at the Alvin Theatre for the week beginning Monday, October 24, of Lew Fields and his "The Summer Widowers" company, which will come to Pittsburg after having completed an engagement of 18 weeks at the Broadway Theatre New York. Mr. Fields will bring to the entire original production employing nearly 200 players, with Miss Irene Franklin equally featured with himself. There are seven scenes and 20 musical numbers, and the ample stage of the Alvin will prove sufficiently commodious to enable Mr. Fields to give the production exactly as it was given at the Broadway Theatre, New York. Two scenes in "The Summer Widowers" have have proved veritable theatrical sensations namely, one in which twenty or more young girls are seen bathing in the surf at Atlantic City, and the other which shows the interior of the St. Vitus Apartments in New York. Surrounding Mr. Fields and Miss Franklin are such well known players as William F. Sweatman, Fritzi Williams, Walter Percival, Paul Nicholson, Will Archie, Nugene O'Rouke, Vernon Castle, Burt Green, Maitland Davies, Louis Franklin, Ada Lewis, Alice Devey, Daisy Dumont, Miss Norton, The Eight Merlin Madcaps, The Hess Sisters, The Hyde Troupe, Baxter and La Conda, Helen Hays and nearly two hundreds others.

The Nixon—Pittsburg

The attraction at the Nixon Theatre in Pittsburg on Monday night will be Henry B. Harris' production of Charles Klein's really great drama, "The Third Degree," which will be presented for a week's engagement. "The Third Degree" presents a picture of methods employed in the inner circle of metropolitan police departments to extort confessions from persons accused of crime. The particular point at issue shows a young man of good family accused of murder. While at college he has strayed from the straight and narrow path, and in his wanderings encounters a girl of middle standing whom he marries. For this he is cast off by his family and the first act of Mr. Klein's play finds him in financial straits and importuning a former college chum for the loan of money. A series of tragedies follow and the young man awakens from a drunken sleep to find himself in the hands of the police accused of murder. He undergoes one of these "sweating processes," which the police are pleased to call examinations, and after a seven hours's session he finally confesses he committed the crime, when as a matter of fact, it is latter proven that the victim shot himself.

The Grand—Pittsburg

Whatever your predilection may be for theatrical entertainment, the Grand's vaudeville show next week will gratify it, for Manager Harry Davis has booked a list of acts so varied and high class that one must be worse than blase, who fails to enjoy it.

He tells the story and acts it out in pantomime. Kathleen Clifford is going to give "chappie" impersonations like those of Mesta Tilly, the famous English comedienne. Few girls make good stage boys, but Kathleen Clifford is the exception. Her "chappies" are the Johnnies you will find on Broadway or Fifth avenue.

The most artistic ventriloquist of the president day is admitted to be Great Howard. He is a deception whose powers of entertainin are unlimited.

A unique importation from Australia is the act of Medge Brothers and Jacobson This trio of young men are to present what is known in the vernacular of vaudeville as a "ratbskeller sketch." One of them plays a saxaphen humorously, another plays the piano and the third sings ballads.

Fred St. Onge and company will appear in a bicycle act. It is a combination of skill and comedy. St. Onge is comedian and he is assisted by a Belgium clown and a pretty girl who is a skillful rider of the wheel as well as a gymnast. Spenser Kelly and Marion Wilder from the London music halls will give a high class, genteel singing specialty. Fields Brothers, dexterous dancing boys, who were formerly with Eddie Leonard, will exemplify both wooden shoe and soft shoe styles of dancing. A number of other attractions and a moving picture entertainment complete the Grand's offering for the forthcoming week.

New Duquesne—Pittsburg.

That beautiful and delightful romantic play, "Old Heidelberg," with its fascinating scenes of Old World University life is to be the joyous attraction at the Duquesne Theatre next week, when the Harry Davis Stock company will revive this Richard Mansfield classic in all its picturesque glor of student jolility and song and celebrated German scenery. The background of this play shows the vineyards and sunny hills of the lower Rhine county, with the silverflowing river Neckar winding past the high cliff, crowned with the ruins of the ancient Castle of Schloss, and the famous King's Stool in the rocks. Throughout it all there runs the idyllic love romance between the young Prince Karl Heinrich and the inn keeper's niece Kathie. The Prince has been sent from the gloomy Court of Karlsburg to happy, frolicksome Heidelberg to spend a finishing year there under the care of a lovable old tutor, Doctor Juttner. At one of the student festivities, celebrated in Ruder's Gardens, this heir to the throne suddenly falls under the spell of the pretty little Kathie. He loses his heart to her in the midst of college revelry and merrymaking, all seems to glide happily along. Then, as suddenly as he was sent forth to Old Heidelberg, the love smitten Prince is recalled to the stern duties of the heir apparent. He escapes once more from the formality and rigidity of court life to the little college town, but his second advent proves different from the first He was then a "college chum"—now he is the reigning Prince. That makes all the difference in the world

Aubrey Ducicault as well as Richard Mansfield, achieved success in this part of Prine Karri Heinrich, which Albert Morrison is to portray at the Duquesne next week to the Kathie of Mary Hall. Fifteen student corps are to be represented by the large crowd of auxiliaries specially engaged for this occasion and the scenic settings will show the class colors and quarters in realistic style. The songs and glees are a special feature of this production, and a number of excellent vocalists have been secured so as to render them in the most admirable manner. With its mingled romance humor, pictures, mences and song, "Old Heidelberg" bids fair to be a most enjoyable event.

REINDEER IN LAPLAND.

They Furnish the People With Shelter, Clothing and Food.

Some people have said that the reindeer of the northern regions is to the inhabitants of those countries what the horse, cow and sheep together are to the dwellers in southern lands, and very probably they are right. What would the Laplander be were he deprived of his favorite? How could he travel without his pair of reindeer harnessed to his sledge?

The reindeer has large black hoofs, behind which are false or secondary hoofs; the result is that when running they make a clattering sound which may be heard a good distance away. The reindeer has much endurance and takes a long journey without seeming tired, though it is only about four and a half feet in height and not very strong. Its horns are long and slender, with branched, rounded antlers, but they are not much used in combat, like those of some other deer.

The largest reindeer are found where the weather is coldest, and their color is lighter. Usually it is brown and white, but in the case of old animals the hair is sometimes quite white. From the skin of the reindeer the Laplanders get not only their clothes, but also bedding and tents; the milk is drunk and made into cheese and the flesh is also good to eat, the tongue and haunches being particularly liked. Pemmican, an important article of food, is made by pouring fat over the pounded meat and mixing them well together.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

BRAINY BABY.

John Stuart Mill Was a Genius at Three Years of Age.

At three years of age John Stuart Mill began the study of Greek, with "arithmetic as an evening relaxation."

At eight he began Latin, Euclid and algebra and had to act as tutor to the younger children. He was a stern and efficient tutor.

At twelve he began scholastic logic and political economy—the latter his main lifework.

At fourteen, while paying a long visit to Sir Samuel Bentham in southern France, he learned French as a relaxation from studying two or three hours before breakfast, five hours between breakfast and dinner and two or three in the evening. Being for the time master of his own hours and not subject to a stern father, he took lessons also in his spare hours in music, singing, dancing, fencing and riding, but never became proficient.

At sixteen Mill could speak in debate with adults with ease and freedom. At eighteen he contributed to the Westminster Review. At twenty-one he was made assistant in the India office and received a large salary for those days.

But Mill was bald at twenty-two. He did not marry until he was forty-five. He himself said: "I never was a boy. It is better to let nature have its own way."

Shrinkage in Glaciers.

Scientists aver that, save over a small area, the glaciers of the world are retreating to the mountains. The glacier on Mount Sarmiento, in South America, which descended to the sea when Darwin found it in 1836, is now separated from the shore by a vigorous growth of timber. The Jacobshaven glacier, in Greenland, has retreated four miles since 1850, and the East glacier, in Spitzbergen, is more than a mile away from its old terminal moraine. In Scandinavia the snow line is farther up the mountains, and the glaciers have withdrawn 3,000 feet from the lowlands in a century. The Arapahoe glacier, in the Rocky mountains, with characteristic American enterprise, has been melting at a rapid rate for several years. In the eastern Alps and one or two other small districts the glaciers are growing. In view of these facts we should not be too skeptical when old men assure us that winters nowadays are not to be compared with the winters of their boyhood.—Dundee Advertiser.

Not Made Up.

Pushing her way through the crowd on the ferryboat to the decrepit rig, the middle aged woman sized up the emaciated animal from every point of view, and then, turning to the owner, who had clambered out of the wagon and propped himself against the engine room, said, "You ought to be ashamed of yourself for driving a poor horse like that; it should be at home and in the stable." "What is the matter with her, lady?" was the easy response of the owner, who didn't seem a whole lot perturbed. "What is the matter with her?" demanded the S. P. C. A. lady with increasing warmth of tone. "Can't you see how skinny she is? She looks starved." "The hoss is all right, lady," calmly rejoined the expressman, as a sweet smile floated through his scant crop of whiskers. "You see, she got up so late this mornin' that she didn't hev time to put on her rats, pads an' extenders, or she would hev been as purty an' plump as ther next one."—Argonaut.

Rooks and Cholera.

The present day security of this country against all danger of a cholera epidemic is matter for thankfulness not only in human circles, but in the rookeries too. When the cholera slew nearly 60,000 people in the insanitary United Kingdom of 1831-2 the rooks appear to have suffered with them. This was stated, at any rate, to have occurred on the estate of the Marquis of Sligo, which boasted one of the largest rookeries in the west of Ireland. On the first or second day of the epidemic's appearance an observer noted that all the rooks had vanished. During the three weeks through which it raged there was no sign of them about their home, but the revenue police found immense numbers of them dead on the shore, ten miles away. When the epidemic abated the rooks returned, but some were too weak to reach their nests, and five-sixths of them had gone.—London Chronicle.

The Green Flash of Sunset.

One of the most rarely witnessed of natural phenomena, but one that has often been discussed at scientific meetings and that always awakens wonder when seen, is the so called "green flash" occasionally visible at the moment of the disappearance of the sun behind a clear horizon. The observer's eye must be fixed upon the rim of the sun as it disappears in order to catch the phenomenon. One authority tells us that he has seen the green flash, although rarely, at the instant of the setting of a bright star. Among the explanations offered is one based upon the optical principle of complementary colors. If one looks at the sun and then closes the eyes a green disk will be perceived. A sensitive eye might be similarly affected by a brilliant star. —New York Herald.

He Took the Blame.

"The guilty man always gives himself away," said a detective, "for, like the chap who bought the forty-cent bathing suit, he can't hide his guilty conscience. The chap I have in mind entered the water at Atlantic City in a forty-cent suit of blue flannel. As he splashed about he was joined by a girl friend. The girl flashed her bright eyes over the tumbling expanse of sea and then with a sigh of delight she said:

"'Isn't the water blue today?'

"'It's shameful,' said the man, with a hot blush; 'it's perfectly shameful how this cheap bathing flannel runs!'"

The Bull Snake.

The bull snake, a species of pine snake, inhabits the shady pine woods along the Atlantic coast from New Jersey to Florida, but other species are found almost everywhere except in New England. The bull snake is quite harmless, but is a powerful constrictor. It lays eggs and feeds upon birds, rodents and eggs. It swallows an egg whole, and after the egg has passed a few inches down the throat—where it forms a large swelling—the serpent lifts its head, elevates its back and exerts a downward pressure until the shell breaks. Owing to a curious constriction of its epiglottis its hiss is so loud and so well sustained as to resemble the sound of redhot iron being plunged in water. The maximum length of these snakes is seven and a half feet. Their color is white, with the exception of the head and back, the former being spotted black and the latter brown.—Wide World Magazine.

Ate Himself Thin.

A terribly emaciated man, about thirty-five years of age, was eating four meals a day, including a heavy breakfast. He was also taking milk between meals. I induced him to give up the milk between meals and to take only a cup of weak tea for breakfast. At once his weight began to increase. It is now normal. Obviously it was a case not only of ordinary mental worry, but also of worry and overwork of the millions of cell lives within him. He gave the cells and organs a rest and at once there was a storage of energy and weight.—Metropolitan Magazine.

Fleet Footed Postmen of Venice.

Probably the letter carriers in Venice are the most industrious in the world. They know how to dodge every waterway, turning up on their routes with a precise regularity that convinces you they have mapped every scrap of the damp city's dry land on their brains. If you go to your destination by gondola they can beat you thereto by a good bit of time. What they know about canals has been applied by them to navigation on land, and they know every tiny street in the city.

Of course there are postoffice gondolas, too, gay yellow things that quite outcolor the yellow sunlight, and any day you happen over the bridge of the Rialto you will see them all fastened to their red and gold poles just underneath the old palatial Fondaco dei Tedeschi, which centuries ago by decree of the Venetian senate two famous architects of early days, Girolamo Tedesco and Giorgio Spavento, built for the use of the many German merchants then living in Venice (somewhere about the year 1505).—Travel Magazine.

The Mystery of a Duel.

Having fought his duel and saved his honor by firing a shot in the air, the editor of a French provincial newspaper went back to his desk, and the incident had quite left his mind when he felt something strange in his thigh. He looked and found that he was bleeding profusely. A doctor was called, who discovered that a bullet was imbedded in the editor's thigh some two inches deep and required extraction. "Why was this not taken notice of on the spot where the duel took place?" he asked. The editor was as much in the dark as the doctor. At the moment of the duel he had fired into the air, and his adversary also took a distracted sort of aim. There had evidently been no intention of doing the slightest harm on either side. The editor felt nothing as he left the field and had shaken hands with his antagonist as a sign of reconciliation. How a bullet came to be lodged in his thigh was simply one of the mysteries of dueling.—London Telegraph.

An Irish Grand Prix.

There was once an Irish Grand Prix. The horse that lowered the French colors was the property of an eccentric Irishman named Conolly and was a big, bony roan, not much to look at in the way of horseflesh, so it was a great surprise to everybody but his owner when he came in first. His previous record at the English Derby the preceding year had not been brilliant enough for anybody to lay any large bets on him, with the sole exception of Conolly himself, whose faith in his entry was so great that he mortgaged his lands and put every cent on the horse. Up to the very end of the race everybody looked on Conolly as a ruined man, but when the roan shot first under the wire he not only carried the British colors to victory, but won a great fortune for his master. This happened in the time of Napoleon III., and Conolly was so proud of his triumph that he insisted on walking ahead of the emperor and empress, cheering and waving his hat.—New York Press.

We, the People.

The phrase "We, the people of the United States," in the preamble of the constitution read in the first draft of the constitution as follows: "We, the people of New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia, do ordain, declare and establish," etc. Though unanimously adopted by the convention, the wording had to be changed to "We, the people," simply because the constitution, which had not as yet been ratified, was to go into effect when ratified by nine states, and, not knowing which states were to ratify, the naming of the states was, of course, out of the question.—New York American.

The Chinese Gong.

The bugle does not sound the call to meals on the Pacific liners, as is the Atlantic habit. Instead a Chinaman pats a gong gently, and its booming echoes find the ear, no matter how remotely located. The gong is the quintessence of vibration. It sets waves of sound into motion that reverberate from every barrier. It moans or defies according to the strength with which it is struck. No wonder the Chinese used it in battle to scare the foe!—New York World.

His First Voyage.

The old sailor came along with a bucket of tar.

"What are you doing?" gasped the seasick passenger feebly.

"Pitching the deck, sor," responded the salt, with a deep sea salute.

"Pitching the deck? Great Scott! Isn't it pitching enough already?"—Chicago News.

A Serious Predicament.

"How can he afford to keep an automobile?"

"He can't, but he has to keep one to prevent people from finding out that he is too hard up to afford it."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Hugging a Delusion.

Willie—Father, what does hugging a delusion mean? Father—Well, my boy, young Mr. Strong is an instance. He thinks your sister Clara is only twenty-two!

"Tis far better to love and be poor than be rich with an empty heart.—Lewis Morris.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

Health is Worth Saving, and Some Charleroi People Know How to Save It

Many Charleroi people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger when all diseases and aches and pains due to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is a Charleroi citizen's recommendation.

Mrs. William McBride, 580 Lincoln avenue, Charleroi, Pa., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been used in our family for several years. Our first experience with them took place while we were living in Beaver Falls. A member of our family was at that time suffering from dull pains in the small of the back and other symptoms of kidney trouble. Doan's Kidney Pills proved of great benefit and there was no return attack of the trouble for some time. About a month ago, Doan's Kidney Pills were again procured at Piper Bros.' Drug Store and they proved as beneficial as before. From our experience with Doan's Kidney Pills, I don't hesitate to recommend them."

NEW MODEL MINE NEAR BROWNSVILLE MOST COMPLETE IN THE ENTIRE VALLEY

Refuse of Coke Ovens to Be Used in Carrying On the Operations

IS OWNED BY INDIVIDUAL

Seven Hundred Acre Tract of Fine Coal Lands Held By Captain Harry Brown, a Former Brownsville Man

A new model mine which is said to be the most complete in the valley has recently been opened up on what is known as the old Sam Brown farm near Brownsville, and headings are now being run in preparation for active mining operations to begin. The latest kind of machinery has been installed. James Black, former superintendent of the Dilworth mine at Ric-s Landing, will be the superintendent, and the private owner is Capt. Harry Brown of Pittsburg, a former Brownsville man.

Capt. Brown has about 700 acres of mining torritory, it is said, and an exceptionally good product is promised. The shaft was but recently sunk and the power thus built and machinery installed.

The machinery to be used is of the latest model, and something entirely different from that in any other mine along the valley. The boilers are of automatic feed and have an auto matic pump attached Capt. Brown is having a number of coke ovens constructed in the immediate vicinity of the mine, and for fuel in his boilers will use a large quantity of the refuse from them. This will be entirely new innovation for a mine and will be a great saving.

About two and a half miles back in the country from the new mine of Capt. Brown the Frick company will probably make new openings. It is said that the Frick Coal and Coke company dickered for the Brown holdings but the owner refused to sell, preferring to operate a mine himself.

It is said that a mine is to be opened also directly across the river by a "dark-horse." presumably a representative of the Jones and Laughlin company.

RUMORED NEW PLANT IS TO BE ERECTED

A man who is supposed to represent the Jones and Laughlin Steel company has completed arrangements for purchasing the tract of bottom land in the vicinity of old Lock No 5 near Brownsville in Washington county. The land is known as the Sol Watkins property and the consideration was $37,200. Ten thousand dollars was paid for the property a few years ago. Nothing has been made public as to what the land is to be utilized for, and there is some talk of a plant to be erected.

Tener Gets Majority

The result of the straw vote for Governor of Pennsylvania which was taken by the clerical force of the Pittsburg Steel at the Monessen office yesterday afternoon resulted in giving John K. Tener, the Republican nominee 33 votes, William H. Berry, the Keystone nominee 4 and Webster Grim the Democratic nominee 0.

RAILROADS LOOKING AFTER NEW FIELDS

Railroads are centering their interests on the new Virginia coal fields to be opened shortly. Yesterday a party of P. and L. E. officials, it is stated, made a trip over a part of the Monongahela railroad leading south from Brownsville, to look over the territory and to get an idea of the field. According to rumor this railroad is planning making extensive improvements to gain access to the new field, as well as the Pennsylvania railroad and the Baltimore and Ohio. An agreement will probably be effected between these three companies, giving each an equal share in the handling of the produce, with Brownsville, as heretofore stated, as the general freight distribution point.

OFFICERS LOOKING FOR ALLEGED HORSE THIEVES

Supposed Pittsburgers Fugitives From Law

CHARGED WITH FORGERY

Claimed Young Men Signed Wrong Names to Important Papers

Nearly every police officer and constable in Washington and Greene counties is searching for two young men supposed to hail from Pittsburg, who are charged with being forgers and horse thieves. Chief of Police William J. Dulaney of Washington with a small posse in automobiles traveled over the eastern section of the country during the past two days on the trail of two men who are driving a horse and buggy belonging to A. R. Renshaw, a Washington liveryman.

The fugitives threw the officers off their trail. The two appeared in Washington about two weeks ago and immediately began to make friends. Last Saturday one of them visited many stores and, making small purchases, gave checks rawn on the Washington Trust company in payment. Sunday, the two obtained the rig from Renshaw, saying they wished to attend a funeral at West Middletown. They left a check in payment and vanished. On Monday morning when the banks opened the checks were found to be worthless. No trace of the men was found until yesterday, when word came from Marianna that they had been seen there.

Mr. and Mrs. Engler will leave shortly for Chicago, where they will remain a short while after which they will go to Iowa and North Dakota, before returning home.

Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Whitlatch and daughter Dorothy went to Pittsburg today to visit relatives.

HEN FRUIT NOT COSTLY WITHOUT GOOD REASON

Scrambled Eggs Fashionable After Horses Shy At Car

The Humpty Dumpty of nursery rhyme fame has nothing on a crate of eggs, which up to yesterday afternoon, when they suddenly passed to the great beyond, belonged to the Valley Crystal ice and Storage company The eggs were in a delivery wagon backed up in front of Joe Caruso's store, on McKean avenue. The horses were rather fractious and when a street car came along gave a sudden start. The crate of eggs went down, down, and with a splash of yellow, miry, sticky, squirmy stuff, the hen fruit flormed into the gutter. Owing to the high cost of eggs the damage is considerable. No insurance was carried.

ST. ELMO COMING ON NEXT TUESDAY

Contrasting boldly with the tense realism which is characterizing both the literature and the drama of the present day, comes the announcement that "St. Elmo," by far the most fascinating novel of southern life ever offered to the public, has been worked over into dramatic form and is to be seen at the Coyle Theatre next Tuesday evening. Since its first appearance many years ago, its author, Augusta J. Evans, has enjoyed a unqiue fame, especially here in the south which afforded her the inspiration for her most notable work. Written in the dignified style that characterizes the mental attitude of the day, and with the extraordinary insight into the habits and thoughts of men, the book sets forth in interest compelling fashion a romantic narrative that has never ceased to appeal. The book has run through edition upon edition and even today, the rising generation seizes upon it with the same vivid interest as did their progenitors, while older folk turn to it to reawaken the old time sentiments which the literature of the present day fails to satisfy.

Skating Rink Open

The skating rink will now be open on Monday, Wednesday and Saturday evenings and Saturday afternoons. A basket ball team is being formed to play teams.

VACANT LOTS REPRESENT IDLE CAPITAL OF $400,000

Three Thousand More Persons Needed to Fill Charleroi, According to Figures Submitted by J. K. Johnston

AVERAGE OF 5.8 PERSONS TO THE LOT

There are 534 unoccupied lots in Charleroi, representing an idle capital of $400,000, according to Jesse K. Johnston, superintendent of the Charleroi Coal company. A report in full as he had been able to secure data, was made on this interesting subject at a smoker of the Charleroi Business Men's Association held on last Thursday evening.

Mr. Johnston in his investigations found that on McKean avenue there are 91 vacant lots; on Fallowfield 41; on Washington 26; on Lincoln, 23 and on Fifth street from the railroad to Lincoln avenue seven, making a total in what might be termed the business or down town section of the town, of 188 unoccupied lots. From Lincoln avenue to the western end of the borough [illegible] district there are 346 lots unoccupied by buildings.

By the old Charleroi Land company allotment and subsequent additions there are 2,250 lots. By a little calulation it is thus shown that there are 1,716 lots occupied in Charleroi. Estimating the population at 10,000 persons, there is an average of 5.8 persons per lot. Leaving room for factories and new industries which may come, there should be 3,000 more persons here to occupy the vacant lots, that is to fill up the town entirely.

K. Brumbaugh is the teacher of the class.

The Straw Vote

"The circulation-craving afternoon papers of Pittsburg have engaged ardently in the straw vote business," says the Connellsville Courier. "Their agents are canvassing theatres and other public places. Their reports indicate that Tener heads the poll and Berry comes second. Grim is put at the foot of the list. This at best only indicates the sentiment in classes above the common people. The latter are not given to gilded palaces of amusement. They will be found voting for either Tener or Grim.

"Berry is the candidate of the eminently respectable element with just enough position to aspire to office and become insurgent when disappointed. In the name of Reform, they would sacrifice the Prosperity of the Nation. They would not do this wilfully, maliciously and understandingly but they would do it unintentionally, ignorantly and misunderstandingly. Their intentions are excellent but their practical knowledge of the situation is defective.

"As proof of this statement we need only point out that the particular object of their antipathy is what they denominate the Penrose Machine. Against it they have the grievance that it hasn't seen fit to recognize their particular and peculiar virtues. They overlook the fact that the chief test of the Republican organization's favor is the favor with which the individual is received by the people.

"As an indication of popular sentiment the straw vote is not always reliable. It shows the trend of sentiment among a particular class only. Among that class it appears that Tener holds his own in spite of recent attempts to connect his name with disreputable business transactions. He stands better than that with the Common People.

"The straw vote man is useful in a way, but he does not scrape the bottom of the situation. He skims the top and the top is usually very frothy. His reports thus far indicate that Tener will head the poll for Governor, and that if Grim is removed from the contest Tener's majority will be all the more overwhelming."

Where Help is Needed

The practical heart to heart talks at the lunch and smoker of the Charleroi Business Men's Association has resulted in a definite showing just how Charleroi stands and what she need to continue the progress that has made the wonderful showing up to the present time. With over five hundred vacant lots in the town it will require approximately three thousand people yet it completly occupy the present limits of the borough bundaries. This is not all, however. There must be something to employ these people, as the population has now greatly outstripped the present business market of the town.

Like Pittsburg, something more is needed in Charleroi besides the big basic industries of glass and coal. Something is necessary to fill in—smaller industries which employ a few people and have a chance to develop and expand. Just now conditions are not favorble to this form of industry. Labor, because of the big concerns here and in the near vicinity, is not available for the starting and development of small enterprises. The supply is not abundent enough nor sufficiently efficient to become specialists in the more skillful manufacturing arts. Enough people do not own their own homes to enter these trades which cannot pay high enough wages for working people to come here and locate from other sections. Consequently these industries seek the agricultural towns of the middle west or the eastern States, where population is congested.

What is necessary now is for all the business interests of the town to encourage what small concerns are already in existence here, and give them a chance to branch out and expand. It is probable that those already here make a greater aggregate than most people imagine, but they are rarely considered as a benefit in a public way. Many of them are in the struggling period, and some help and encouragement at the proper time would do much toward tiding them over. Every one that fails throws some competititive labor back on the market to seek places in the big concerns again, or possiby leave town to enter new fields. We do not want to drive people out of town; we should seek to keep them here. It is these small concerns that are needed now, and they should command the attention of those interested in the development and progress of the town.

An Importer's Game

While personal animus against the State Republican organization and political disappointment are leading factors in the Philadelphia North American's scandalous attacks on Congressman John K. Tener, Republican candidate for Governor, there are other sordid and sinister motives. The North American is the personal organ of John Wanamaker, one of the largest importers in the United States, who is exceedingly interrested in lower tariff schedules for the benefit of his retail dry goods trade. The Wanamaker interests have big department stores in New York and Philadelphia, and are heavy importers of foreign goods. They maintain factories in Europe where labor is cheap, and a Congress that will abolish or cut down the protective tariff will materially add to the Wanamaker profits.

This is the obvious reason why the Keystone campaign, which ostensibly is waged against the so-called Republican State Machine, is trying to elect all the Democratic Congressmen it can in Pennsylvania. The Keystone party has indorsed practically every Democratic Congressman where there promises to be a close fight, as well as members of the Legislature who elect a United States Senator at the next session. This is why the North American inaugurated its campaign to slander, to satisfy old political grudges and to promote the Wanamaker importing interests. Foreign made goods can be sold cheaper in this country than those made by American workmen and with the tariff tax lowered the Wanamaker interests will be doubly served, even though it does result in closing down many of the textile mills and factories in this country.

Very Brief.

A record of brevity in a holiday correspondence was established by a Frenchman in the eighteenth century. Voltaire and Piron, the epigrammatist, exchanged challenges to write the shortest possible letter. So, when Voltaire was starting on a journey, he wrote to Piron, "Eo rus," which is the complete Latin for "I am going to the country." Piron's answer was just "I"—complete Latin for "Go!"

In business correspondence the record is divided between Victor Hugo, who, anxious to know how his "Les Miserables" was going, wrote to the publisher, "?" and the publisher, who triumphantly replied, "!"

A Servile House of Lords.

When King Henry VIII.'s name was spoken in his presence in the house of lords every peer prostrated himself with Asiatic servility. An entry in the records of the house gives the substance of a speech delivered by the chancellor on Jan. 16, 1541, in which the king's goodness and wisdom are extolled, and it tells us that whenever his majesty was mentioned, "which happened often," all the lords prostrated themselves, bowing to the ground as one man.

The Important Personage.

"Are you the owner of this place?" asked the book agent.

"I am," replied Farmer Corntassel. "Anything I can do for you?"

"No. The chances are that you are too hard worked to have time to read anything and that you haven't any spare change anyhow. Let me talk to the hired man."—Washington Star.

Poor Simile.

"I don't see how any one so timid as Hemlock is," remarked Wigger. "Why, he's like a mouse in his own house."

"Nonsense!" exclaimed Wagger. "His wife isn't the least bit afraid of him."

And War Continued.

Miss Coolley Day says she's ready to make up if you are. Miss Cutting—Tell her I'd be ready to make up, too, if I had a complexion as muddy as hers.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Patience.

Her Mother—You must be patient with him. The Bride—Oh, I am. I know it will take time for him to see that he can't have his own way.

AMONG THE THEATRES

The Palace—Charleroi

"A Salutary Lesson," was the title of an impressive object lesson at the Palace Theatre this week. A Biograph photoplay shows how lack of attention to a little child—God's greatest gift to the home—nearly had a fatal culmination. The scene is a pleasant home in a seaside cottage, but the mother of the little girl is so addicted to reading cheap novels, that when the child begs to be taken for a stroll on the beach she is impatiently repulsed. Later the father takes the little one to the beach, but there meets a flirtatious young lady to whom he devotes his attention and neglects the child. In the meantime the mother at home entertains the minister, who calls during the husband's absence. Left to herself the little one wanders to a rock out in the bay on which she falls asleep. The rising tide engulfs her, and as she is about to be drowned she is rescued by a life guard. The conscience stricken parents are brought to a realization of their indifference, and the scene ends happily.

The Coyle—Charleroi

Unusual interest is being manifested everywhere in the production of "St. Elmo," Neil Twomey's dramatization of Augusta J. Evans' novel of that name which will be seen at the Coyle Theatre, Charleroi, Tuesday evening, October 25. The production is on an elaborate scale and the production company is made up of metropolitan players, in the selection of whom every care was exercised. No novel of southern life or indeed no novel of any classification has given the reader a more virile or interesting character than that of St. Elmo Murray, who wars against himself and the world and against his own nobler and better nature until the softening influence if a truly noble girl provides him with the incentive to conquer his evil genius. Mr. Twomey is a dramatic author of experience and every expedient of a master of stagecraft has been employed to reproduce with absolute fidelity to the original the charming southern atmosphere of this famous novel. The book numbers its admirers by the hundreds thousands and the play is rapidly gaining the same meed of favor.

The Alvin—Pittsburg.

A remarkably lively interest is being manifested in the engagement at the Alvin Theatre for the week beginning Monday, October 24, of Lew Fields and his "The Summer Widowers" company, which will come to Pittsburg after having completed an engagement of 18 weeks at the Broadway Theatre New York. Mr. Fields will bring to the entire original production employing nearly 200 players, with Miss Irene Franklin equally featured with himself. There are seven scenes and 20 musical numbers, and the ample stage of the Alvin will prove sufficiently commodious to enable Mr. Fields to give the production exactly as it was given at the Broadway Theatre, New York. Two scenes in "The Summer Widowers" have have proved veritable theatrical sensations namely, one in which twenty or more young girls are seen bathing in the surf at Atlantic City, and the other which shows the interior of the St. Vitus Apartments, in New York. Surrounding Mr. Fields and Miss Franklin are such well known players as William F. Sweatman, Fritzi Williams, Walter Percival, Paul Nicholson, Will Archie, Nugene O'Rouke, Vernon Castle, Burt Green, Maitland Davies, Louis Franklin, Ada Lewis, Alice Devey, Daisy Dumont, Miss Norton, The Eight Merlin Madcaps, The Hess Sisters, The Hyde Troupe, Baxter and La Conda, Helen Hays and nearly two hundreds, others.

The Nixon—Pittsburg

The attraction at the Nixon Theatre in Pittsburg on Monday night will be Henry B. Harris' production of Charles Klein's really great drama, "The Third Degree," which will be presented for a week's engagement. "The Third Degree" presents a picture of methods employed in the inner circle of metropolitan police departments to extort confessions from persons accused of crime. The particular point at issue shows a young man of good family accused of murder. While at college he has strayed from the straight and narrow path, and in his wanderings encounters a girl of middle standing whom he marries. For this he is cast off by his family and the first act of Mr. Klein's play finds him in financial straits and importuning a former college chum for the loan of money. A series of tragedies follow and the young man awakens from a drunken sleep to find himself in the hands of the police accused of murder. He undergoes one of these "sweating processes," which the police are pleased to call examinations, and after a seven hours's session he finally confesses he committed the crime, when as a matter of fact, it is latter proved that the victim shot himself.

The Grand—Pittsburg

Whatever your predilection may be for theatrical entertainment, the Grand's vaudeville show next week will gratify it, for Manager Harry Davis has booked a list of acts so varied and high class that one must be worse than blase, who fails to enjoy it.

He tells the story and acts it out in pantomime. Kathleen Clifford is going to give "chappie" impersonations like those of Mesta Tilly, the famous English comedienne. Few girls make good stage boys, but Kathleen Clifford is the exception. Her "chappies" are the Johnnies you will find on Broadway or Fifth avenue.

The most artistic ventriloquist of the president day is admitted to be Great Howard. He is a deception whose powers of entertainin are unlimited.

A unique importation from Australia is the act of Medge Brothers and Jacobson. This trio of young men are to present what is known in the vernacular of vaudeville as a "ratskeller sketch." One of them plays a saxaphen humorously, another plays the piano and the third sings ballads.

Fred St. Onge and company will appear in a bicycle act. It is a combination of skill and comedy. St. Onge is comedian and he is assisted by a Belgium clown and a pretty girl who is a skillful rider of the wheel as well as a gymnast. Spenser Kelly and Marion Wilder from the London music halls will give a high class, genteel singing specialty. Fields Brothers, dexterous dancing boys, who were formerly with Eddie Leonard, will exemplify both wooden shoe and soft shoe styles of dancing. A number of other attractions and a moving picture entertainment complete the Grand's offering for the forthcoming week.

New Duquesne—Pittsburg.

That beautiful and delightful romantic play, "Old Heidelberg," with its fascinating scenes of Old World University life is to be the joyous attraction at the Duquesne Theatre next week, when the Harry Davis Stock company will revive this Richard Mansfield classic in all its picturesque glor of stud ent jolility and song and celebrated German scenery. The background of this play shows the vineyards and sunny hills of the lower Rhine county, with the silverflowing river Neckar winding past the high cliff, crowned with the ruins of the ancient Castle of Schloss, and the famous King's Stool in the rocks. Throughout it all there runs the idyllic love romance between the young Prince Karl Heinrich and the inn keeper's niece Kathie. The Prince has been sent from the gloomy Court of Karlsburg to happy, frolicksome Heidelberg to spend a finishing year there under the care of a lovable old tutor, Doctor Juttner. At one of the student festivities, celebrated in Ruder's Gardens, this heir to the throne suddenly falls under the spell of the pretty little Kathie. He loses his heart to her in the midst of college revelry and merrymaking, all seems to glide happily along. Then, as suddenly as he was sent forth to Old Heidelberg, the love smitten Prince is recalled to the stern duties of the heir apparent. He escapes once more from the formality and rigidity of court life to the little college town, but his second advent proves different from the first He was then a "college chum"—now he is the reigning Prince. That makes all the difference in the world.

Aubrey Ducieault as well as Richard Mansfield, achieved success in this part of Prine Karri Heinrich, which Albert Morrison is to portray at the Duquesne next week to the Kathie of Mary Hall. Fifteen student corps are to be represented by the large crowd of auxiliaries specially engaged for this occasion and the scenic settings will show the class colors and quarters in realistic style. The songs and glees are a special feature of this production, and a number of excellent vocalists have been secured so as to render them in the most admirable manner. With its mingled romance humor, pictures, mences and song, "Old Heidelberg" bids fair to be a most enjoyable event.

REINDEER IN LAPLAND.

They Furnish the People With Shelter, Clothing and Food.

Some people have said that the reindeer of the northern regions is to the inhabitants of those countries what the horse, cow and sheep together are to the dwellers in southern lands, and very probably they are right. What would the Laplander be were he deprived of his favorite? How could he travel without his pair of reindeer harnessed to his sledge?

The reindeer has large black hoofs, behind which are false or secondary hoofs; the result is that when running they make a curious sound which may be heard a good distance away. The reindeer has much endurance and takes a long journey without seeming tired, though it is only about four and a half feet in height and not very strong. Its horns are long and slender, with branched, rounded antlers, but they are not much used in combat, like those of some other deer.

The largest reindeer are found where the weather is coldest, and their color is lighter. Usually it is brown and white, but in the case of old animals the hair is sometimes quite white. From the skin of the reindeer the Laplanders get not only their clothes, but also bedding and tents; the milk is drunk and made into cheese and the flesh is also good to eat, the tongue and haunches being particularly liked. Pemmican, an important article of food, is made by pouring fat over the pounded meat and mixing them well together.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

BRAINY BABY.

John Stuart Mill Was a Genius at Three Years of Age.

At three years of age John Stuart Mill began the study of Greek, with "arithmetic as an evening relaxation."

At eight he began Latin, Euclid and algebra and had to act as tutor to the younger children. He was a stern and efficient tutor.

At twelve he began scholastic logic and political economy—the latter his main lifework.

At fourteen, while paying a long visit to Sir Samuel Bentham in southern France, he learned French as a relaxation from studying two or three hours before breakfast, five hours between breakfast and dinner and two or three in the evening. Being for the time master of his own hours and not subject to a stern father, he took lessons also in his spare hours in music, singing, dancing, fencing and riding, but never became proficient.

At sixteen Mill could speak in debate with adults with ease and freedom. At eighteen he contributed to the Westminster Review. At twenty-one he was made assistant in the India office and received a large salary for those days.

But Mill was bald at twenty-two. He did not marry until he was forty-five. He himself said: "I never was a boy. It is better to let nature have its own way."

Shrinkage in Glaciers.

Scientists aver that, save over a small area, the glaciers of the world are retreating to the mountains. The glacier on Mount Sarmiento, in South America, which descended to the sea when Darwin found it in 1836, is now separated from the shore by a vigorous growth of timber. The Jacobshaven glacier, in Greenland, has retreated four miles since 1890, and the East glacier, in Spitzbergen, is more than a mile away from its old terminal moraine. In Scandinavia the snow line is farther up the mountains, and the glaciers have withdrawn 3,000 feet from the lowlands in a century. The Arapahoe glacier, in the Rocky mountains, with characteristic American enterprise, has been melting at a rapid rate for several years. In the eastern Alps and one or two other small districts the glaciers are growing. In view of these facts we should not be too skeptical when old men assure us that winters nowadays are not to be compared with the winters of their boyhood.—Dundee Advertiser.

Not Made Up.

Pushing her way through the crowd on the ferryboat to the decrepit rig, the middle aged woman sized up the emaciated animal from every point of view, and then, turning to the owner, who had clambered out of the wagon and propped himself against the engine room, said, "You ought to be ashamed of yourself for driving a poor horse like that; it should be at home and in the stable." "What is the matter with her, lady?" was the easy response of the owner, who didn't seem a whole lot perturbed. "What is the matter with her?" demanded the S. P. C. A. lady with increasing warmth of tone. "Can't you see how skinny she is? She looks starved." "The boss is all right, lady," calmly rejoined the expressman, as a sweet smile floated through his scant crop of whiskers. "You see, she got up so late this mornin' that she didn't hev time to put on her rats, pads an' extenders, or she would hev been as purty an' plump as ther next one."—Argonaut.

Rooks and Cholera.

The present day security of this country against all danger of a cholera epidemic is matter for thankfulness not only in human circles, but in the rookeries too. When the cholera slew nearly 60,000 people in the insanitary United Kingdom of 1831-2 the rooks appear to have suffered with them. This was stated, at any rate, to have occurred on the estate of the Marquis of Sligo, which boasted one of the largest rookeries in the west of Ireland. On the first or second day of the epidemic's appearance an observer noted that all the rooks had vanished. During the three weeks through which it raged there was no sign of them about their home, but the revenue police found immense numbers of them dead on the shore, ten miles away. When the epidemic abated the rooks returned, but some were too weak to reach their nests, and five-sixths of them had gone.—London Chronicle.

The Green Flash of Sunset.

One of the most rarely witnessed of natural phenomena, but one that has often been discussed at scientific meetings and that always awakens wonder when seen, is the so called "green flash" occasionally visible at the moment of the disappearance of the sun behind a clear horizon. The observer's eye must be fixed upon the rim of the sun as it disappears in order to catch the phenomenon. One authority tells us that he has seen the green flash, although rarely, at the instant of the setting of a bright star. Among the explanations offered is one based upon the optical principle of complementary colors. If one looks at the sun and then closes the eyes a green disk will be perceived. A sensitive eye might be similarly affected by a brilliant star. —New York Herald.

He Took the Blame.

"The guilty man always gives himself away," said a detective, "for, like the chap who bought the forty-cent bathing suit, he can't hide his guilty conscience. The chap I have in mind entered the water at Atlantic City in a forty-cent suit of blue flannel. As he splashed about he was joined by a girl friend. The girl flashed her bright eyes over the tumbling expanse of sea and then with a sigh of delight she said:

"'Isn't the water blue today?'

"'It's shameful,' said the man, with a hot blush; 'it's perfectly shameful how this cheap bathing flannel runs!'"

The Bull Snake.

The bull snake, a species of pine snake, inhabits the shady pine woods along the Atlantic coast from New Jersey to Florida, but other species are found almost everywhere except in New England. The bull snake is quite harmless, but is a powerful constrictor. It lays eggs and feeds upon birds, rodents and eggs. It swallows an egg whole, and after the egg has passed a few inches down the throat—where it forms a large swelling—the serpent lifts its head, elevates its back and exerts a downward pressure until the shell breaks. Owing to a curious constriction of its epiglottis its hiss is so loud and so well sustained as to resemble the sound of redhot iron being plunged in water. The maximum length of these snakes is seven and a half feet. Their color is white, with the exception of the head and back, the former being spotted black and the latter brown.—Wide World Magazine.

Ate Himself Thin.

A terribly emaciated man, about thirty-five years of age, was eating four meals a day, including a heavy breakfast. He was also taking milk between meals. I induced him to give up the milk between meals and to take only a cup of weak tea for breakfast. At once his weight began to increase. It is now normal. Obviously it was a case not only of ordinary mental worry, but also of worry and overwork of the millions of cell lives within him. He gave the cells and organs a rest and at once there was a storage of energy and weight.—Metropolitan Magazine.

Fleet Footed Postmen of Venice.

Probably the letter carriers in Venice are the most ingenious in the world. They know how to dodge every waterway, turning up on their routes with a precise regularity that convinces you they have mapped every scrap of the damp city's dry land on their brains. If you go to your destination by gondola they can beat you thereto by a good bit of time. What they know about canals has been applied by them to navigation on land, and they know every tiny street in the city.

Of course there are postoffice gondolas, too, gay yellow things that quite outcolor the yellow sunlight, and any day you happen over the bridge of the Rialto you will see them all fastened to their red and gold poles just underneath the old palatial Fondaco dei Tedeschi, which centuries ago by decree of the Venetian senate two famous architects of early days, Girolamo Tedesco and Giorgio Spavento, built for the use of the many German merchants then living in Venice (somewhere about the year 1505.—Travel Magazine.

The Mystery of a Duel.

Having fought his duel and saved his honor by firing a shot in the air, the editor of a French provincial newspaper went back to his desk, and the incident had quite left his mind when he felt something strange in his thigh. He looked and found that he was bleeding profusely. A doctor was called, who discovered that a bullet was imbedded in the editor's thigh some two inches deep and required extraction. "Why was this not taken notice of on the spot where the duel took place?" he asked. The editor was as much in the dark as the doctor. At the moment of the duel he had fired into the air, and his adversary also took a distracted sort of aim. There had evidently been no intention of doing the slightest harm on either side. The editor felt nothing as he left the field and had shaken hands with his antagonist as a sign of reconciliation. How a bullet came to be lodged in his thigh was simply one of the mysteries of dueling.—London Telegraph.

An Irish Grand Prix.

There was once an Irish Grand Prix. The horse that lowered the French colors was the property of an eccentric Irishman named Conolly and was a big, bony roan, not much to look at in the way of horsefesh, so it was a great surprise to everybody but his owner when he came in first. His previous record at the English Derby the preceding year had not been brilliant enough for anybody to lay any large bets on him, with the sole exception of Conolly himself, whose faith in his entry was so great that he mortgaged his lands and put every cent on the horse. Up to the very end of the race everybody looked on Conolly as a ruined man, but when the roan shot first under the wire he not only carried the British colors to victory, but won a great fortune for his master. This happened in the time of Napoleon III., and Conolly was so proud of his triumph that he insisted on walking ahead of the emperor and empress, cheering and waving his hat.—New York Press.

We, the People.

The phrase "We, the people of the United States," in the preamble of the constitution read in the first draft of the constitution as follows: "We, the people of New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia, do ordain, declare and establish," etc. Though unanimously adopted by the convention, the wording had to be changed to "We, the people," simply because the constitution, which had not as yet been ratified, was to go into effect when ratified by nine states, and, not knowing which states were to ratify, the naming of the states was, of course, out of the question.—New York American.

The Chinese Gong.

The bugle does not sound the call to meals on the Pacific liners, as is the Atlantic habit. Instead a Chinaman pats a gong gently, and its booming echoes find the ear, no matter how remotely located. The gong is the quintessence of vibration. It sets waves of sound into motion that reverberate from every barrier. It moans or defies according to the strength with which it is struck. No wonder the Chinese used it in battle to scare the foe!—New York World.

His First Voyage.

The old sailor came along with a bucket of tar.

"What are you doing?" gasped the seasick passenger feebly.

"Pitching the deck, sor," responded the salt, with a deep sea salute.

"Pitching the deck? Great Scott! Isn't it pitching enough already?"—Chicago News.

A Serious Predicament.

"How can he afford to keep an automobile?"

"He can't, but he has to keep one to prevent people from finding out that he is too hard up to afford it."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Hugging a Delusion.

Willie—Father, what does hugging a delusion mean? Father—Well, my boy, young Mr. Strong is an instance. He thinks your sister Clara is only twenty-two!

'Tis far better to love and be poor than be rich with an empty heart.—Lewis Morris.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

Health is Worth Saving, and Some Charleroi People Know How to Save It

Many Charleroi people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger when all diseases and aches and pains due to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is a Charleroi citizen's recommendation.

Mrs. William McBride, 580 Lincoln avenue, Charleroi, Pa., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been used in our family for several years. Our first experience with them took place while we were living in Beaver Falls. A member of our family was at that time suffering from dull pains in the small of the back and other symptoms of kidney trouble. Doan's Kidney Pills proved of great benefit and there was no return attack of the trouble for some time. About a month ago, Doan's Kidney Pills were again procured at Piper Bros.' Drug Store and they proved as beneficial as before. From our experience with Doan's Kidney Pills, I don't hesitate to recommend them."

An Extraordinary Shoe Purchase and Sale

Several thousand pairs, representing surplus stocks of large Eastern manufacturers offered at the most absurdly low prices.

Women's shoes, men's shoes and children's shoes; there will be bargains for every member of the family. It will be many a long day before such values as these are available.

The unseasonable Fall weather has been a great deterrent to business with the big manufacturers; many have been compelled to accept big cancellations of orders, which afforded us unusual advantageous buying opportunities.

Will you pay $1.90 for $3.50 Footwear?

Well, women, that's the bargain we offer for the next two days, new Fall styles in patent kid, patent colt, with dull and cloth tops, Cuban and military heels, sale price $1.90

Women's $3 50 patent kid button shoes $2 20
